IV.

Tommy and Rayvis Roberson, (the "Robersons") initially hired Respondent to represent Rayvis Roberson in a Chapter 13 plan of reorganization. The representation was later expanded to include Tommy Roberson as well. Respondent has no training or expertise in the field of bankruptcy.

V.

During the course of the representation, Respondent failed to respond to the Robersons' reasonable requests for information regarding the matter and failed to either keep the Robersons reasonably informed about the status of the bankruptcy or to explain to the Robersons the requirements that they needed to fulfill subsequent to the bankruptcy petition being filed. In fact, Respondent allowed his non-lawyer employee, J. Wayne Johnson ("Johnson"), to work primarily with Complainants on their case. Consequently, multiple petitions were filed and each was summarily dismissed due to Respondent's failure to competently handle the matter. The Robersons paid eighteen hundred eighty-five ($1,885.00) for the representation.

VI.

The Bankruptcy Trustee sought to dismiss the Robersons final petition, claiming the Robersons were serial filers. On July 13, 2000, the Bankruptcy Court ruled that "there is an absence of bad faith on behalf of the Debtors in filing of multiple cases under chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Code." The Court further determined the Robersons might be entitled to a return of the fees paid to Alfonzo R. Greenidge & Associates and issued an order to Respondent and Johnson to show cause
