

Court of Appeals
Court of Appeals for the First District of Texas
301 Fannin, Room
Houston, Texas 77002
(713) 274-2700

In 2004, the Appellate Section of the State Bar of Texas and the Courts of Appeals worked together to identify key information needed by appellate attorneys and pro se litigants to practice effectively before the court. To assist the court in this effort, the Appellate Section collected and formatted the relevant information and published it in the Appellate Advocate in February 2005. This information was updated in April 2015 and the court intends to keep the information current for the use of persons with matters before the court.

For agreed or unopposed motions, including a certificate of conference can expedite the ruling on the motion. Motions will be held for 10 days unless a certificate of conference shows the motion is unopposed, it is an emergency, or it requests an extension of time to file a brief.	The court generally grants a first motion for extension of time for up to 30 days to file a brief. Further requests for extensions to file a brief will be considered on a case-by-case basis.	As a general rule, motion rulings and orders issue on Tuesdays and Thursdays.
Briefs	See e-filing requirements.	Briefs that do not comply with Rule 9 of the Texas Rule of Appellate Procedure are not accepted and are returned for correction.	The Court follows the Texas Rules of Appellate Procedure. Electronic features: It is useful for the bookmarks in electronic briefs to list each section and heading in the brief (or a shortened version thereof) and each item in the appendix. Hyperlinks from citations in the brief to items in the appendix are also useful.	All filers should consult the Redaction Guidelines found on the Supreme Court's website and Rules 9.8, 9.9, and 9.10 of the Texas Rule of appellate Procedure.

			Appendix: In addition to the items required by Tex. R. App. P. 38.1(k)(1), the appendix should include key authorities that are not available on Westlaw. Cross-Appeals: After consolidation of cross-appeals, the Court encourages the parties to file an agreed motion regarding the number and due dates of briefs.
Case Assignment	Pursuant to the Court's Local Rules, when a notice of appeal is filed, it must contain a statement indicating whether a related appeal or original proceeding has been previously filed in either the First or Fourteenth Court of Appeals. The notice must provide the related case's caption and cause numbers.	Panels are generally reconstituted three times per year (at the first of April, August, and December) according to a random matrix. The Chief Justice always presides over A Panel or any other panel on which the Chief Justice is assigned. The most senior justice selected for each of the other panels will preside over that panel. A random draw several weeks before submission determines initial authorship of each case.	The justices and legal staff of each panel read briefs, review the records, and discuss the cases at pre-submission and post-submission conference.	En banc consideration is rare.
Oral Argument	A request for oral argument must be noted on the front cover of the party's brief (somewhere other than the top right corner). A party requesting argument is encouraged to include a statement of reasons in the body of the brief addressing why argument should be permitted.	The Court generally grants 15 minutes per side, and appellant may reserve time for rebuttal. Requests to modify the time permitted for argument should be made before the day of argument. Parties are notified of the justices on the panel when a	The Court grants oral argument under the guidelines of Tex. R. App. P. 39. If the court grants oral argument, any side that filed a brief will be given an opportunity to argue even if one side did not request oral argument in their	Oral argument exhibits may be filed electronically before the day of argument. There is a charge of $25 per exhibit.

A party's failure to request oral argument on the front cover waives the right to argue. If the request is inadvertently omitted, it is proper to file a motion requesting argument promptly after discovering the omission. Voting			The court's deliberative process is confidential.	Opinions and motions are circulated electronically for voting by the justices.
Opinions		The Court has undisclosed internal guidelines with deadlines for drafting and circulation opinions. The authoring judge circulates an opinion only to the other members of the panel.	Except for emergency matters, the court issues opinions on Tuesdays and Thursdays.
Motions for Rehearing	See e-filing requirements.	Motions are circulated to the entire panel and voted on by the individual panel members. It is rare for the court to grant a rehearing without a request by the parties.	En banc consideration is not favored. The justices on the court carefully apply the standard in Rule 41.2(c), which limits en banc consideration to cases where extraordinary circumstances or conflicts exist. 			not circulated to the rest of the court. If the panel does not change its opinion, the vote of the justices on the panel is reported to the rest of justices, who then consider the motion. If any justice calls for a vote, the entire court votes on rehearing.
Original Proceedings	When an original proceeding is filed, the court's local rules require that a notice must be filed indicating whether a related appeal or original proceeding has been previously filed in either the First or Fourteenth Courts of Appeals. The notice must provide the related case's caption and cause numbers.	The 1 st and 14 th Courts of Appeals have concurrent habeas and mandamus jurisdiction. Petitions should be filed with the clerk of the 1 st Court during the first six months of a calendar year, and with the clerk of the 14 th Court during the last six months. Petitions will be logged and assigned between the courts on an alternating basis. See Local Rule 1.2. If one of the courts has previously heard a related matter, a notice must be filed identifying the matter, and the current proceeding will be assigned to the court that heard the related matter. See Local Rule 1.3.	A party seeking emergency relief should call and notify the Court clerk that the motion is going to be filed. The Court reviews requests for emergency relief immediately. The Court's staff reviews petitions when they are filed. All original proceedings are given expedited consideration.	The panel assigned an original proceeding will determine whether to hear oral argument based on the particular issues presented. The Court may grant mandamus relief without oral argument.

Technology

1. The Court uses Westlaw primarily. The court does not have access to Lexis. The Court has Supreme Court Reporters, but not U.S Reporters. Providing citations to the Supreme Court Reporter is helpful.
2. The Court no longer accepts any filings filed by fax. For a motion that needs immediate consideration, parties should file motions through eFileTexas.gov, the portal established by the Texas Legislature.

4. The Court distributes its orders and opinions electronically on its website.
5. The Court records oral arguments.

Appellate Mediation

1. The Court has a program for appellate mediation.
2. Parties are ordered to mediation if the court determines the case is appropriate for mediation or the parties agree. If mediation is ordered, the appeal is not abated. Parties are entitled to object to a mediation order within 10 days of the date of the order.
3. When a civil appeal is filed, the parties are notified that the appellant should complete and file a docketing statement, which includes a mediation section, and appellee should complete and file a one-page mediation docketing statement, both within 15 days of the date the case is docketed. The parties are informed that failure to comply will be deemed as an affirmative response to mediation by the non-filing party.
