

SURVEY OF Judicial Salaries

Ohio Judges Receive Long-Awaited Raise

On September 29, 2015, judges in Ohio received the first of four pay increases proposed to be phased in over the next three years. Each bump will be 5 percent. It is the first movement in compensation for Ohio judges since 2007. Before the 2015 boost, Ohio ranked 47th in the nation in pay for its general-jurisdiction, trial-court judges.

"I am grateful to Governor John Kasich, Senate President Keith Faber, and Speaker Cliff Rosenberger for working together to adjust judicial salaries to reflect the important work that judges do," Supreme Court of Ohio Chief Justice Maureen O'Connor said. Michigan continues to hold the mark as the state that has gone the longest without a judicial pay increase. In 2011 and 2013 commissions recommended increases for Michigan judges; however, such suggestions have not yet gained legislative approval.

The table on the left lists states where judges have waited the longest for a pay increase. All states on the list except Kansas have salary commissions that provide recommendations to the legislature. More information on How States Set Their Salaries can be found here. The map below shows the 22 states that have received salary increases between January and July, 2015.

General-Jurisdiction Judges: States without Recent Salary Increases

Judicial Salaries at a Glance

The average annual percent change for the four judicial positions, and the state court administrators analyzed by the Survey, is 1.61% for increases from January 1, 2015 through July 1, 2015. As indicated in the table below, this increase remains below the pre-recession (2003-2007) average increase of 3.24%. With the nation's economic recovery still tepid, the rebound in annual increases from the low seen during the 2010-2011 period of the recession will be slow and variable.

Salaries and Rankings for Appellate and General-Jurisdiction Judges - Listed Alphabetically by State Name

The table below lists the salaries and rankings for associate justices of the courts of last resort, associate judges of intermediate appellate courts, and judges of general-jurisdiction trial courts (actual salaries and cost-of-living-adjusted salaries) as of July 1, 2015. Where possible, the salary figures are actual salaries. In jurisdictions where some judges receive supplements, the figures are the most representative available—either the base salary, the midpoint of a range between the lowest and highest supplemented salaries, or the median. Salaries are ranked from highest to lowest, with the highest salary for each position having a rank of “1.” The lowest salary has a rank of “51” except for intermediate appellate courts, which exist in only 40 states. The mean, median, and salary range for each of the positions are also shown.

Using the C2ER Cost-of-Living Index. The Council for Community and Economic Research—C2ER—is the most widely accepted U.S. source for cost-of-living indices, with nearly 400 reporting jurisdictions across America. The cost-of-living indices used in this report were developed by C2ER using a robust, multivariable model, which incorporates the costs of goods and services within a reporting jurisdiction along with seven additional variables to greatly improve predicted, statewide average C2ER factors. The seven variables are community population, population density, income, growth rate, utility rates, efficiency of the government sector, and location of the region. More detailed information can be found at www.c2er.org.

Salaries and Rankings for Appellate and General-Jurisdiction Judges - Listed in Order of State Rank

The table below lists the salaries and rankings for associate justices of the courts of last resort, associate judges of intermediate appellate courts, and judges of general-jurisdiction trial courts (actual salaries and cost-of-living-adjusted salaries) as of July 1, 2015. Where possible, the salary figures are actual salaries. In jurisdictions where some judges receive supplements, the figures are the most representative available—either the base salary, the midpoint of a range between the lowest and highest supplemented salaries, or the median. Salaries are ranked from highest to lowest, with the highest salary for each position having a rank of “1.” The lowest salary has a rank of “51” except for intermediate appellate courts, which exist in only 40 states. The mean, median, and salary range for each of the positions are also shown.

Information in this Survey is collected from designated representatives in each state. The National Center for State Courts has protocols in place to help ensure the accuracy of the data that are collected, analyzed, and ultimately reported.

Methodology

The Survey of Judicial Salaries, published for nearly 30 years by the National Center for State Courts (NCSC) with the support of state court administrative offices across the United States, serves as the primary record of compensation for state judicial officers and state court administrators.

This issue of the Survey of Judicial Salaries reports salary data as of July 1, 2015. This cutoff date is important because states implement salary changes at various points during the year. However, a standard and unchanging cutoff date must be established to publish salary data in a timely and predictable fashion. Due to recent changes in data-collection protocols and analytics, the NCSC is now able to report changes in state salaries more quickly. This will give policymakers who are considering changes in judicial compensation the most up-to-date salary information at the national level.

This Survey was prepared by the Knowledge and Information Services (KIS) Office of the National Center for State Courts, with assistance from  Visual Research
